WHAT ARE YOUR RIGHTS?

Do you know your rights under New Jersey law?

Do you know that this state has laws to protect you in your right to equal opportunity for a job, for a home in a publicly-owned or assisted housing project, and in the schools, regardless of your race, religion or ancestry?

Do you know that the same law assures you fair and equal treatment in restaurants, swimming pools, hotels, skating rinks and all other places open to the public?

Too often, segregation and other forms of discrimination continue because citizens are unaware of their rights.

This guide will tell you what you can do to protect your rights under the law.

THE NEW JERSEY LAW AGAINST DISCRIMINATION

EMPLOYMENT

If because of your race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry — An employer discriminates against, fires or refuses to hire you, or a labor union discriminates against, excludes or expels you, or an employment agency discriminates against you, then — the law has been broken.

When this happens, here is what you can do: Tell your story by visit or letter to the Division Against Discrimination, State Department of Education, 1060 Broad Street, Newark 2, telephone Mitchell 2-7962.

That office will then try to settle the matter by persuasion. If this fails, the Division Against Discrimination can order the law-breaker to comply with the law. If necessary, this order can be enforced by the Courts.

PUBLIC PLACES

If because of your race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry — Any hotel, store, restaurant, swimming pool, bath house, theatre, skating rink, public vehicle or other place of public service or entertainment discriminates against you or advertises that it does or intends to discriminate, then — the law has been broken.

When this happens, here is what you can do: Tell your story by visit or letter to the Division Against Discrimination.

SCHOOLS AND LIBRARIES

If, because of your race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry — Any non-sectarian school — kindergarten, grade or high school, trade or business school, college, university or public library — refuses to admit you or segregates you, then — the law has been broken.

When this happens, here is what you can do: Tell your story by visit or letter to the Division Against Discrimination.

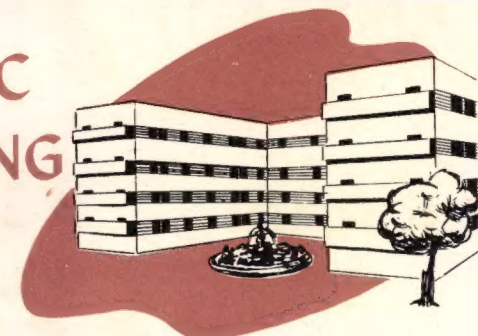

HOSPITALS

If, because of your race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry — Any hospital, clinic or dispensary refuses to admit or to treat you, or denies you the type of accommodation you request, then — the law has been broken.

When this happens, here is what you can do: Tell your story by visit or letter to the Division Against Discrimination.

PUBLIC HOUSING

If, because of your race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry — Any public or publicly-assisted housing project segregates you or discriminates against you, then — the law has been broken.

When this happens, here is what you can do: Notify your County Prosecutor and the State Attorney General. Bring a court action for an injunction against the lawbreaker.

INSURANCE COMPANIES

If, because of your race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry — Any insurance company tries to treat you unfairly by refusing to insure you, by raising your premium rates or setting up special conditions for your policy, then — the law has been broken.

When this happens, here is what you can do: Notify your County Prosecutor and the State Attorney General.

Bring a court action for an injunction against the lawbreaker.
